

I heard the Chairman on a TV program today (Sunday, June 1st). He was very dismissive, I felt, of all the mail he has received opposing his moves. He indicated he would not postpone his decision to hold the meeting on Monday.

The reasons he gave for going ahead with his agenda did not convince me one bit that this was not a bad move. Democracy is being threatened on all fronts, what with people such as Ashcroft and the FCC Chairman holding important posts.

He should know, if he has read his history, that a big lie told often enough, will be perceived as the truth by the populace. If they are given mostly one message, the result will be that that message will resonate and other opinions will unheard.

Too bad. We seem to be moving rapidly into an ogligarchy and a two level society = the haves and the have nots. Any suggestions out there as to how this situation can begin to be changed???

Sincerely, Susan Bryant
